Hello,

I'm applying for the Senior Platform Engineer role. I've spent the last four years running the platform team at a logistics startup as it scaled from one region to nationwide coverage, and before that three years as a backend engineer on the same team.

The part of your posting that stood out was the emphasis on on-call health. I've been the person who inherited a rotation that paged nine times a week and rebuilt it around fixing root causes instead of writing more runbooks — it's down to under two now, and the team that owns it hasn't lost anyone to burnout since.

On what I don't have: I haven't worked with your specific event-streaming stack, though I've run Kafka in production at smaller scale. I'd be learning the operational edges of it on the job.

I'm based in Portland and open to relocation. Happy to talk whenever is convenient.
